Hi Susan,

We are updating you on the status of the enforcement matter concerning Hazelton Creek Properties, Moosic, in Pennsylvania. OGC discussed the case with OCSPF this morning, and Alex Dunn has a call scheduled with the Region 3 RA this afternoon at 4pm to discuss it as well. It is our understanding that you will be invited to participate in that call.

Procedural Status

Attorney Client / Ex. 5

Substantive Background: use versus disposal of PCBs:

Attorney Client / Ex. 5

Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's (PADEP) issued a General Permit for Beneficial Use that allows for the use (and import from other states) of construction fill material at state permitted sites where that fill has a total PCB concentration of up to 484.5 ppm. The materials being "used" or proposed for "use" as fill by Hazelton, under PADEPs General Permit, are excavated from demolition and construction sites or proposed dredging sites in other states and transported to PA for use as construction fill.

Susan – Here is a procedural update on the Hazelton Creek filing [TSCA/ PCBs]:

Hazelton Creek Properties, Moosic, Pennsylvania, filed a petition dated 12/5/18 for review with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. The filing requests review of what the petitioner labels a “final agency action” in the form of a Notice of Noncompliance and Information Request.

The scheduling order required a government response by Thursday, December 20th, but DOJ filed an unopposed motion for extension of time to respond by January 8th. The motion has not yet been granted, but the clerk advised DOJ to proceed as if it will be granted.

Subject: NEW LITIGATION -- TSCA [Hazelton Creek Properties v EPA (3rd Circ. No. 18-3665)]

On December 5, Hazelton Creek Properties, located in Moosic, PA, filed a petition for review under TSCA section 19(a) in the US Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit challenging a Notice of Noncompliance (NON) issued by EPA Region 3. The NON asserts that placement of PCB materials on the site property at levels over 2 ppm, in compliance with a Pennsylvania State permit and Pennsylvania policy, constitutes a violation of the EPA TSCA PCB regulations, and cautions that further receipt by the company of such materials may result in EPA enforcement. The Notice states that "No corrective action is necessary by your company at this time".

We will contact DOJ to have an attorney assigned and work with Region 3 ORC on this. Please let us know if you have any questions.
